Tired of complicated apps with features you'll never use? With this app you can add notes or set a reminder with a single click! You can create a note by typing directly into the widget, with a single click, directly from the main screen (without opening another screen). You can also set real reminders on notes, not short beeps, but a 1-minute ring, and more. Supported Android devices : [4.0.3-4.0.4] Ice cream sandwich - [4.1-4.3.1] Jelly Bean - [4.4-4.4.4] KitKat - [5.0-5.0.2] Lolli pop - [6.0 - 6.0.1] Marshmallow - [7.0 – 7.1.1] Nougat - [8.0-8.1] Oreo - [9] PieNotes_Widget-2.71_Pro_Fix.apk We all need a little reminder to do things sometimes. We live in a world filled with distraction and various shiny things that often lead us off course no matter what it is we are trying to do. Thus, setting reminders can not only be productive, but a savior in certain situations. There are a variety of ways to use reminders on Android. You can set them up in your calendar app, a dedicated to-do list app, and there are some apps that only exist to display reminders when you need them. Even some annotation apps have built-in reminder features. We'll take a look at the best reminder apps for Android here! BZ ReminderCalendar NotifyGoogle Hold NotesHeynoteLife RemindersMicrosoft To-DoTickTickTodoistPersonal Assistant appsRead next: How to set up Google CalendarBZ Reminder Price: Free/$3.99BZ Reminder is a very easy-to-do list app. You can set reminders and then remind you when the time comes. The app has a robust, but short list of features. You can color code tasks and reminders for easier organization. In addition, it comes with Android Wear support, alerts, recurring tasks (to take out the garbage every week) and also set reminders every hour for things like drinking water. It also has widgets, a simple calendar included, and more. The app is not as big as the big names in this space. However, it's one of the best simple reminder apps for personal use. Calendar NotifyPrice: Free / Up to $5.49Calendar Notify is above average calendar app and a good reminder app. It syncs to Google Calendar so you can use both if you need to. It provides a quick picture of your agenda and schedule. Plus, you'll get some widgets along with a high degree of customization. It's a little easier than the stock Google Calendar app, but you can use both interchangeably for more control. Google Keep NotesPrice: FreeGoogle Keep Notes is probably the best note with the app available right now. It's also about two or three feature updates away from being a to-do list app as well. It has a collaboration feature that lets you share notes with others. You can also take text, list, photo, audio, and video notes. The reminders features are quite simple, but effective. You can set notes to appear as notifications at certain times or locations. For example, you can make your shopping list note pop up when your GPS shows that you are at your local grocery store. It also saw a major redesign in late 2018 that makes it even nicer to watch. HeynotePrice: FreeHeynote is a bit of a wildcard in this space. It's actually a live wallpaper app mixed with a note that takes the app. You leave notes on your wallpaper and re-apply it to get your reminders right on the start screen all the time. It's a neat way to accomplish the feat without extra push notifications or a widget. You can create notes over regular backgrounds or simply write them over your existing wallpaper. Just remember that this is a wallpaper app so if you decide you don't like it, you still have to switch your wallpaper back to what it was manually. It is also completely free as of this writing. IkePrice: Free/$1.99Ike To-Do List is another unique reminder app. It uses President Eisenhower's priority matrix. You put in a lot of tasks and assign them a meaning value. The app then prioritizes the tasks. It also comes with reminders, due dates, pictures, sounds, notes, widgets, customization, and more. It definitely covers all the basics and does it in a fun way. The app is free. The Pro version goes for $1.99 and unlocks all the themes, widgets, and some additional features. Life RemindersPrice: Free/$4.00Life Reminders is one of those simple reminder apps. It allows you to create tasks with a time limit. The app simply reminds you when it's time to do it. It can even set-up phone calls or send SMS/text messages on a schedule. Tasks are repeatable according to a daily, weekly or monthly schedule. In addition, the Material Design app uses seven languages, and more. Otherwise, the app is simple and it works fine. The free version has most of the features. Microsoft To-DoPrice: FreeMicrosoft To-Do is Microsoft's to-do list app. It works cross platform with Windows devices. Some other features include: so you can share information with family, friends, and co-workers. You'll also get recurring tasks, reminders, and some more detailed features like notes and subtasks. It's a perfect great reminder app and it's useful on your PC or laptop. That makes it a great candidate for people on a budget who still want all the features and cross-platform support with their Windows PC. TickTickPrice: Free/$27.99 per yearTickTick is an up and will make list app. It has a lot of features, including reminders, recurring tasks, widgets, various customization options, and even a calendar. TickTick rounds off the experience with MaterialDesign, device synchronization, collaboration with other TickTick users, and more. It works great for a variety of situations. However, it works best in a household or work environment where multiple people use the same app. The free version is more than good enough for personal use. The Pro version runs for $27.99 a year and it's mostly for businesses. TodoistPrice: Free/$29 per yearTodoist is among the best to make list apps. It's powerful, stylish, and it works really well. Along with the app, it comes with a Chrome extension and a native PC app. This way you can stay in sync everywhere. It supports most of the basic features you would need in a to-do list app. The only drawback is that the actual reminders part is a premium feature. You can still view your to-do lists in both the app and widget format. We would have liked at least one reminder per task in the free version. We only recommend this as a reminder app if you plan to go premium with it anyway. Those looking for free options should check out the other apps on this list. Personal Assistant AppsPrice: Free (usually)Personal Assistant apps are all the rage right now. The popular ones include Google Assistant, Amazon Alexa, Microsoft's Cortana and Samsung's Bixby. All of these personal assistant apps are also great reminder apps. You just engage with them and ask them to remind you to do something at a certain time. They usually fulfill without hassle. Assistant is probably the best here and works on most Android devices. Alexa is right up there but only works on Amazon devices. Cortana works on most things but it's a bit incomplete while Bixby is the one we'd recommend for Samsung owners (assuming they don't already use Google Assistant). The widget on your desktop allows you to always have a to-do list at hand and immediately displays the scheduled tasks. This is a very simple and extremely easy to use tool with powerful features. ÅSimple notesÅ is also great for drawing up a plan for every day, week or year. Write down ideas and share them with friends, colleagues and family members. You can use the program as a notepad, notebook, diary, organizer, shopping list, to-do list. The widget allows you to select things that have been done or Reminders. You can create notes with a single click on the Home screen. And if your hands are busy, use voice input and the note is automatically converted to text. Thousands of users have already appreciated the simplicity and ease of use of the application. You just need to add it to the main screen as a widget.
